British Suspect Bomb Plot In Istanbul Tragedy; Nazis Put 500,000 on 2 Frontiers

Four Persons Are Killed and 20 Injured at Turkish Hotel; Bulgarians Are Suspected

Slays Hold Parley

Crown Council Confers
at Belgrade, May Meet
Axis Demands

(By The Associated Press)
Yugoslavia was reported late today to have agreed "in principle" under heavy Nazi pressure, to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance—thereby opening a new avenue for an expected German invasion of Greece. Usually reliable quarters in Belgrade said, however, that Germany would be asked to grant a transition period for Yugoslavia so that she might adhere to the Axis without internal discord.

Plot Is Suspected

British quarters in Istanbul said today they considered that the bombing attempt to assassinate George W. Rendel, British minister who left German-occupied Bulgaria, was plotted to "mar Turkish-British relations."

Four persons were killed and upwards of 20 were injured by explosion of the bomb last night in the lobby of the luxurious Pera Plaza Hotel, where the British diplomat had brought his party from Sofia by train only a few minutes before. Rendel escaped.

The British said that they believed the plot was engineered in Bulgaria and that the bomb was rigged to explode on Turkish soil.

The official Turkish news agency said it had been established that two suitcases containing bombs were mixed with the luggage of the British party at the Sofia railroad station before the departure of Rendel's private train.

The agency said a police investigation disclosed that one of the suitcases was taken to the Pera Plaza with the rest of the British baggage, and the other was taken to another hotel nearby by a Briton who became suspicious of the bag's contents.

This man notified the police, the agency said, and they opened the bag and found explosives.

Crown Council Meets

Adolf Hitler today massed 500,000 troops on the frontiers of Greece and Turkey and signs pointed to an imminent showdown.

Yugoslav leaders gathered in Belgrade amid forecasts that she would capitulate quickly to Nazi demands that she join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

In yielding, Yugoslavia presumably would open a new avenue for an expected German invasion of Greece.

Indications that the "zero hour" might be near were seen in these factors:

The steady southward movement of Nazi troops through Bulgaria, under way for 10 days, suddenly dwindled to a trickle.

German staff officers were reported to have disappeared from Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, and headed for field headquarters at Plovdiv—40 miles from the Greek border, 80 miles from Turkey.

Thousand of German and Bulgarian warplanes were placed for action, including siren-screaming Nazi bombers exploited with terrorizing effect in western Europe last spring.

British sources at Istanbul quoted a Greek army officer as saying German planes had raided the town of Dede Agach in Grecian Thrace—likely striking-point of a German attack.

Belgrade dispatches said Russia had promised Turkey she has nothing to fear from Soviet Red armies massed along the Danube.

Bombings Begin

Germans Attacking Greek Towns From Bulgarian Bases, Is Report

Istanbul, Turkey, March 12 (AP)—Members of the British party which arrived here from Bulgaria yesterday said they were told by a Greek officer that German planes already had begun bombing Greek towns from Bulgarian bases.

The train bearing the party, including the staff of the British legation in Sofia, twice entered Greek territory enroute to the Turkish frontier.

On one occasion, the train was delayed, it was said, and a Greek officer explained it had been compelled to halt because German planes were raiding the town of Dede Agach in Grecian Thrace.

Scene of Bomb Explosion

An apparent effort to assassinate George W. Rendel, former British minister to Bulgaria, failed when a bomb exploded in the Pera Palace Hotel, Istanbul, Turkey, leaving 15 persons dead or dying. Rendel and his daughter, Anne, were unhurt. He had just arrived at the hotel to take up residence after breaking British relations with German-occupied Bulgaria. The injured included the former first secretary of the Sofia legation and two girl typists of the legation staff. Rendel is shown at left.

Assembly Passes Bill to Legalize Nassau's Budget

Early Signature of Lehman
Is Expected; Appeals
Court Says Items
Must Be Listed

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Governor Lehman signed today and thus enacted into law a bill to legalize Nassau county's "lump sum" $17,813,000 budget for 1941, recently invalidated by the Court of Appeals.

The measure passed the Assembly this morning, after previously receiving Senate approval. The governor previously gave a message of necessity, permitting final action on the bill without the usual statutory three-day delay.

Bill Is Passed

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—The Assembly passed unanimously and sent to Governor Lehman today a bill to legalize Nassau county's "lump sum," $17,813,000 budget for 1941, recently invalidated by the Court of Appeals.

Early approval of the governor was anticipated because his message to lawmakers, citing necessity of the legislation, permitted its approval in both Senate and Assembly without the usual, statutory three-day delay.

The Court of Appeals, highest state tribunal, ruled last Thursday the budget must be further itemized and reserved decision on a request of county officials that the decree be stayed pending legislative action.

Herman Block, Munsey Park, unsuccessful 1940 Democratic candidate for Nassau county executive, brought the court action. He contended the budget, consisting chiefly of four lump-sum appropriations, must be itemized line-by-line under county charter requirements.

Upholding Block's contention, the court declared the budget "may not consist of lump sums where it is practical to state the item."

Cat Is Rescued

London, March 12 (AP)—A blue Persian cat—hungry but uninjured—was rescued after being buried four days in the wreckage of a lodgehouse demolished by a bomb at Buckingham Palace. Workers, attracted by the cat's meowing, removed pieces of heavy masonry to make the rescue.

Manufacturers Are Told to Use Old Tools on Contracts

Cleveland Engineer Says
Orders Are Lagging as Result of Waiting for Equipment

Cleveland, March 12 (AP)—Defense manufacturers were advised today to rush their old machine tools into operation and "spend less time waiting for new machines which are much more needed by someone else."

"I know of some cases where the production of defense materials has been held up for weeks because the company was waiting for one or two machines," declared George T. Trundle, Jr., president of a Cleveland engineering company.

"I know of cases in which one-half of a defense contract could have been completed on old machines while the company was sitting around waiting for the delivery of new machines."

"This is no criticism of the builders of new machinery. They have done a perfectly amazing job—a better job than anyone could possibly expect. But I do say most emphatically that the quickest way of getting the job done today is to start to work it out with the equipment already on hand, instead of waiting for something better which may not arrive in time."

Trundle addressed an opening session of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' army and navy meeting on national defense. The conference is taking up such problems as how to expedite manufacture of tanks, airplanes and ammunition; recruiting of industrial personnel; subcontracting; and how to speed production of gages. More than 500 midwestern industrialists and engineers are expected to attend.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, March 12 (AP)—The position of the Treasury March 10: Receipts $63,494,726.52; expenditures $72,175,825.24; net balance $1,707,897,094.99; working balance included $963,994,857.11; customs receipts for month $12,649,486.89; receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $4,071,050,002.82; expenditures $7,818,613,014.96; excess of expenditures $3,747,563,012.14; gross debt $46,274,407,135.07; increase over previous day $4,880,090.61; gold assets $22,315,814,607.84.

C.I.O. Group Strikes at Edgewater

3,000 Quit in Jersey

Conciliator Is Assigned to Lackawanna Dispute at Steel Works

(By The Associated Press)
C. I. O. Union employees at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of the Aluminum Company of America struck today, claiming that the company had violated overtime pay provisions of the union contract.

The plant employs about 3,000 workers and manufactures aluminum sheets used in many defense articles.

The strike was authorized in secret balloting March 6 and 7. Unsuccessful efforts to settle the dispute followed.

Meanwhile one of the government's ace labor trouble shooters was dispatched to Milwaukee today for special conferences on the Alis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. strike.

Labor Secretary Perkins said John R. Steelman, chief of the U. S. Conciliation Service, would confer with the company management and C. I. O.-United Automobile workers in an attempt to end the strike which for seven weeks has delayed production on $45,000,000 worth of national defense orders.

Union recognition was a major point at issue.

Finn Is Assigned

Thomas Finn, another representative of the Conciliation Service, was assigned to try to settle a fresh dispute between the C. I. O.-Steel Workers organizing committee and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at a Lackawanna, N. Y., plant which was the site of a brief strike last month. The union, which claims 10,000 of the 14,000 employees as members, declared the company refused to discuss grievances.

Labor men attached wide significance to the negotiations in progress at New York between the C. I. O.-United Mine Workers of America and the nation's major bituminous coal operators concerning a new two-year contract for 450,000 miners.

John L. Lewis, U. M. W. A. president, presented the union's demands yesterday: A wage increase of $1 a day; no change in the existing five day, 35-hour week. Terming the demands "rather formidable," the mine operators prepared to present their counter-proposal tomorrow.

The present contract expires April 1.

Bus Strike Continues

New York city transportation continued to be hampered by the strike of 3,500 employees of two large bus companies for pay increases and shorter hours. The tie-up of 1,300 buses has forced 900,000 city dwellers to seek transportation by taxi or subway.

A. F. L. building laborers struck yesterday at a $12,000,000 small arms ammunition plant being built at St. Louis, Mo. The company said it was legally unable to fulfill the union's request that permanent job passes be issued to union business agents.

At Minneapolis efforts were on to arbitrate differences which threatened to halt production of defense equipment at two concerns—the Minneapolis-Moline Powder, Implement Company, and the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company. C. I. O. machinists charged that a company union had been formed at the latter firm since the C. I. O. Union submitted a new contract two weeks ago. At Minneapolis-Moline, the machinists are seeking wage increases and paid vacations.

Joseph Clark Baldwin Takes Simpson

Congressional Post in Special Election

New York, March 12 (AP)—Joseph Clark Baldwin, new congressional representative from Manhattan's 17th "Silk-Stocking" District, stepped into the late Kenneth F. Simpson's post today, hailing his victory as proof of American unity on aid to the embattled democracies.

A Republican, as was his predecessor, the former city councilman polled 23,252 votes in yesterday's special election. His Democratic rival, Lawyer-Author Dean A. A. Lange, whose candidacy had been championed by President Roosevelt, garnered 16,690.

Eugene P. Connolly, American Labor candidate and only one of the three to campaign in opposition to the British-aid and defense programs, trailed far behind with 3,985 ballots.

"I am gratified and proud at the results of this election," said Baldwin, 44-year-old former newspaperman who began his political career in 1930 as minority leader of

Democrat Calls Budget
Cuts Picayune, G.O.P.
Calls Its Action for Good of State

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Republican majority leaders, over-riding Democratic criticism of "picayune politics," forced assembly passage of the G. O. P.-reduced $384,200,000 state budget today and sped it to the senate for expected prompt approval.

Democrats Rebel

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—Republican majority legislators, carrying out determination to cut the state budget for the third successive year, beat down in the Assembly today minority Democratic efforts to restore more than $1,200,000 for defense purposes.

Amid shouts from both parties, Assemblyman Owen McGovern, New York city Democrat, introduced amendments to the Republican $384,200,000 financial program designed to restore funds for emergencies.

"It is picayune," he shouted, "for the Republicans to nullify the defense efforts of the governor."

Assemblyman George B. Parsons, Syracuse Republican, retorted that the majority party's refusal to sign "a blank check for the governor" showed Republicans would not "abdicate legislative prerogatives."

Outburst Is Clamorous

The debate brought the most clamorous outburst of the session and Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck was forced to pound his gavel frequently in an effort to restore order.

The Democrats' most severe attack centered on Republican defense cuts. The minority also assailed the majority's claim to have slashed $2,250,000 from Governor Lehman's financial plan they asserted more than $1,700,000 of these funds were restored to the budget chiefly to benefit upstate Republican areas.

By strict party vote, 82 Republicans to 60 Democrats, the Assembly passed another budget bill permitting state acquisition of more than $1,300,000 which majority lawmakers claimed was "overlooked" by the governor in preparing the budget.

The saving, representing refunds on grade crossing elimination expenditures, was declared by Democrats to be merely a "book-keeping transaction."

Passage Is Forecast

Republican leaders renewed assertions that budget debate will be climaxed by passage of the revised program by both houses by mid-afternoon, when a public hearing starts on methods of financing highway construction.

Testing public sentiment on road building funds was believed likely to cause debate lasting well beyond midnight over advisability of the governor's proposal to divert $50,000,000 from grade crossing elimination funds or finance construction by a $200,000,000 bond issue.

The governor's recommendation already has approval of one legislature and needs only concurrence of the present session to put the proposal before the electorate as a constitutional amendment. The bond issue also would go to the people next fall if approved by lawmakers.

Getting Out Early

Philadelphia, March 12 (AP)—Whether they like it or not, Americans are getting out of bed earlier these days—proof: The nation's alarm clock industry is booming, or, you might say, "ringing the bell." Philadelphia distributors of nationally-advertised clocks are convinced the induction of thousands of men into the army and the national defense upswing are responsible for the tremendous increase in sales. They took clocks along to help the bugler.

Food Prices Mounting

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Rising prices for pork, fresh vegetables and some staples like coffee, sugar and lard boosted the cost of the family budget in February about two per cent over what it was in January, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. Pork chops sold for 1.4 per cent more in February than in January, and 26.6 per cent more than in February, 1940. Roasting chickens and potatoes also reflected higher price trends.

President Signs Lease-Lend Bill

H. R. 1776, better known as the lease-lend bill, becomes law as President Roosevelt signs it in the White House in Washington, 15 minutes after it arrived by special messenger from Capitol Hill. On the desk are some of the pens he used in signing the measure. Later, he told a press conference he would ask congress for the nation's biggest peace-time appropriation—$7,000,000,000—to finance the help-Britain program, and that some time within a week he would make a radio talk on the subject.

Nazis Requisition All Dutch Gold, Give Paper Money

Occupation Authorities
Trying to Step Up Dutch
Trade With Other
Nazi Territory

Washington, March 12 (AP)—German conquerors of the Netherlands have requisitioned Dutchmen's gold from A to Z, according to authoritative reports received by diplomatic quarters here.

Soon after Holland's occupation last May the German authorities announced that all Dutch-owned gold must be sold to the German-controlled Netherlands Bank, beginning with citizens whose names start with the letter A and continuing in alphabetical sequence.

Even persons in the Z-listing now have turned in their gold for Dutch paper currency, it was reported.

German occupation authorities, the reports stated, are trying to reestablish trade relations between the Netherlands and other German-occupied nations in order to make Holland a paying conquest.

Trade between Holland and Belgium, which stopped entirely for several months after the invasion, was said to be recovering gradually, and the Dutch were negotiating a number of other trade agreements within the Nazi economic sphere.

Holland exported twice as much garden produce to Germany in 1940 as it did in 1939.

While many foods are strictly rationed the Dutch were reported still to have adequate supplies of canned and dried fruits. But fresh fruit was scarce, and shortages were anticipated in many major foodstuffs.

Nazi Says Berlin Ready for Anything

Berlin, March 12 (AP)—The official German attitude toward the United States aid-to-Britain bill, a Nazi spokesman said today, may be summed up with the words:

"We are not surprised, but are prepared for anything."

More solemn than usual, the spokesman declared:

"Mr. Roosevelt is an unpredictable man. Let him send one convoy and . . ."

The sentence was left hanging.

"We are determined to torpedo everything that approaches England," the spokesman went on after a pause. "We will see. We are ready for anything, come what may."

As a matter of fact the law's aims have been in operation a long time. They (the British) got 50 destroyers, but the fact remains that needed materials have not arrived in desired volume and we will see they do not do so hereafter."

City Records Show 17-Inch Snowfall

Snow Removal Cost Is Set
at $1,814.75; Men
Busy Last Night

Seventeen inches of snow fell in Kingston from early Saturday morning until noon today, according to Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works. The heaviest fall was on Saturday and Sunday when it was estimated that there was a 12-inch snowfall in the city.

Mr. Oppenheimer has filed with the board a report covering the snow storm of Saturday and Sunday, in which he set forth that the cost of removing the snow from the streets at $1,814.75.

The snow that fell at intervals during Tuesday was not heavy enough to require the use of the snow plows, but as it was a light snow it packed quickly under the wheels of traffic making the roads very slippery.

It was necessary for the sanding crews to work throughout the day and last night sanding the hills and dangerous street intersections.

Mr. Oppenheimer's report follows:

The following is a report covering the snow storm of March 8 and 9, in which approximately 12 inches of snow fell.

It was necessary for the department to clear the slush from the streets on March 10, and this second plowing is also included in this report:

Lease-Lend Bill Sets All
Time Appropriation for Peace Days

Washington, March 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today a request for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out a "fixed policy of this government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can."

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn, transmitting detailed estimates of the budget director for the $7,000,000,000 expenditure, Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

"I strongly urge the immediate enactment of this appropriation."

The Chief Executive declared that America has felt that "it was imperative to the security of America that we encourage the democracies' heroic resistance to aggressions, by not only maintaining but also increasing the flow of material assistance from this country."

Therefore, he said, Congress had enacted and he had signed the British aid bill.

(In London, Prime Minister Churchill announced to the House of Commons that the British aid bill had become law and termed it a "new Magna Carta" "an inspiring act of faith.")

Biggest Appropriation

The President's request for the biggest peace-time appropriation bill in the nation's history went to Congress less than 24 hours after he signed the bill into law and approved the first list of supplies to be shipped to Britain and to Greece.

The appropriation estimate of Budget Director Smith broke the $7,000,000,000 down into various categories, of which the largest by far was $2,054,000,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spare parts, and accessories."

Other Categories

Other categories were: $1,343,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores, supplies, spare parts, and materials, including armor and ammunition and their components.

$1,350,000,000 for agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles.

$362,000,000 for tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks, and other automotive vehicles, with spare parts and accessories.

$629,000,000 for vessels, ships, boats and other water craft, and equipment, supplies, materials, parts and accessories.

$260,000,000 for miscellaneous military equipment, supplies and materials.

$752,000,000 for facilities and equipment for the manufacture or production of defense articles, including the construction, acquisition, maintenance and operation of these facilities, and the acquisition of land for sites.

Repair Fund

$200,000,000 for testing, inspecting, repairing, or otherwise putting in good working order any defense articles for the government of "any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

This last item presumably would be used in part to effectuate terms of the British aid law under which warships of Great Britain might be repaired in American bases.

Navy Fliers Die in Crash of Bombing Plane at California Base

San Diego, Calif., March 12 (AP)—Two navy men died in the crash of a torpedo bombing plane last night, raising to 18 the number of airmen killed since Jan. 1 in tragedies befalling navy planes based in San Diego.

The bomber spun out of a thundercloud near French Peak, struck the ground and burst into flames.

Machinists' Mates Ralph Goff of Racoon, Ky., and Dillard Darius Doga of Basil, La., were the victims.

The pilot, Ensign Walter Glenn Barnes of Coronado, Calif., baled out shortly before his ship struck the ground. He was treated at the Ramona sheriff's office for shock and scalp wounds.

Year-Round Apple Is Now a Reality

Tryout Is Given in New Types of Storage

Ithaca, N. Y., March 12—Folks who like apples will soon be able to get them the year around, with the fruit just as crisp and juicy as when harvested in late fall.

The reason is the "modified atmosphere" storage developed at Cornell under the direction of Dr. A. J. Heinicke, head of the pomology department.

Thirty thousand bushels of apples in these special types of storage since they were harvested last fall, and the storages will be opened soon. Most of the apples held are of the McIntosh variety, which is favored by most consumers of the northeast.

Because this is the first time the storages have been used for a commercial tryout, after several years of experimentation at Cornell, both consumers and growers await the day when the apples are revealed to the public.

County agricultural agents in four counties have reported that those who adopted the new development and have the 30,000 bushels to be released this spring are: Claude Hepworth of Milton, Ulster county; Stuart Hubbard, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county; the Sodas cold storage plant at Sodas, Wayne county; and John Hall of Lockport, Niagara county.

The apples could be held longer than this spring or summer, it is said, but then they would run into another harvest season and nothing would be gained. The effort now is merely to extend the "apple eating" season with top-notch fruit from fall to late spring.

In the modified atmosphere storage, the apples undergo a kind of sleep or hibernation which preserves their keeping qualities. The room is airtight, with the amount of oxygen and carbon dioxide maintained at certain levels. The temperature, too, is regulated and not allowed to go higher than 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Insulation and refrigeration equipment are employed the same as in cold storage.

The advantages of the system are said to be many, among which is that fruit removed from storage will retain its flavor and firmness much longer than that removed from cold storage.

So, unless he's told, say the Cornell authorities, the consumer who wants to sink his teeth into an 18-month old apple probably won't know it from a blushing October specimen.

Bricks Without Straw — And They're Fine

Lawrence, Kas.—A muddy future may brighten the American farmer's life.

Prof. W. C. McNow of the University of Kansas reports he has developed a study, weather-resistant building block, 90 to 94 per cent of it composed of ordinary earth, the remainder of cement.

Low-cost mud barns, silos, sheds and even homes could be constructed, McNow says, when practical methods for general farm use are worked out.

"One farmer wrote that the soil cement blocks suggested the only way he knew that he ever could build a home of his own."

There's no chance of the building oozing away. McNow, who began the experiments two years ago, claims the blocks will endure rain, freezing, thawing and 1,000 pounds of pressure to the square inch.

One problem remains — finding a simple way by which the farmer can measure the materials, mix the mud, and stamp out the blocks.

University of Kansas officials have confidence in the experiments. They decided to construct a one-story industrial research laboratory, mainly of mud. The walls will consist of a double row of soil cement blocks set in concrete. The inner wall will be six per cent cement and the outer 10 per cent.

The cost? Prof. McNow estimates materials will be from 6 to 10 cents a cubic foot compared with 15 to 25 cents a cubic foot for standard cement.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

The "RF's" seem to be one of the special interests of philately in 1941. Their importance increases because of arrival of the first French stamps since Napoleon's time which omit the familiar abbreviation of "RF" or its equivalent word, "Republique Francaise."

First of the stamps without "RF" was also the first to bear a portrait of Marshal Petain. Its inscription includes "Postes Francaises."

Last group of "RF's" to arrive in this country includes two semi-postals with the inscription, "Pour Nos Prisonniers de Guerre." One is an 85 centime plus 5-fr green showing two soldiers in a pastoral scene. The other is a 1-fr plus 3-fr red depicting prisoners inside an enclosure.

Another new set of Swiss stamps has arrived. Values are 50 rappen showing the Vaud monument in the Federal building of Berne, a 60-r depicting a William Tell painting; a 70-r showing a warrior from Ferdi and Hodler's mural; an 80-r of a warrior from the same mural; a 90-r of a flag-bearer also from a painting; a 1-frane of the Mayor of Lucerne; a 1.20-fr of the national hero, Jung Jenatsch; a 1.50-fr of Lieut. Gen. Francois Reynolds from a painting; a 1.50-fr of Lieut. Gen. Francois Reynolds from a painting, and a 2-fr of Col. Joachim Forrer von Neu St. Johann from a painting.

The Italian stamp symbolizing the Axis alliance has arrived. The design includes portraits of Mussolini and Hitler, and is a complete set.

Millinocket, Me. (AP)—Nowadays if Johnny Boyle, cook in a lumber camp deep in Maine's north woods runs out of nutmeg he can get more just about as quick as if he were working in a city restaurant. All he has to do is telephone to the Great Northern Paper Company's supply depot and a ski-equipped airplane will drop down on the ice on a convenient lake or pond and make the delivery. Besides taking the place of "tote teams" that used to spend days hauling supplies to the camps, the plane ferries sick or injured lumberjacks to hospitals and timber-cruisers from one operation to another.

Fire Says Bombs Dropped

Dublin, March 12 (AP)—The Eire government information bureau reported that bombs were dropped early today by an unidentified plane near Corndonagh and Innishowen, County Donegal, but that no damage was done. The bureau also announced that a British plane came down in the sea this morning in the neighborhood of Galway City and that two crewmen who survived were interned.

Cardonagh is a small town 20 miles east of Londonderry. Innishowen is in the extreme northwestern part of County Donegal.

Churchill Thanks U. S.

In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told a cheering House of Commons that the British aid bill was a "New Magna Carta . . . an inspiring act of faith" by the United States.

Hitler's high command asserted that naval and aerial attacks on Britain's supply lines from November through February had destroyed 2,037,000 tons of shipping. Only a few days ago, the British asserted Axis claims on sea losses were exaggerated 100 per cent.

Belatedly, the British government disclosed that Nazi bombs have damaged Buckingham Palace, official residence of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, for the second time, shattering palace windows and killing a lodge house policeman. The palace was first bombed last fall.

In overnight raids, RAF bombers attacked Germany's big Kiel naval base, the London air ministry announced, and blasted the docks at Bremerhaven. The Germans acknowledged damage to a "purely residential section" at Kiel, with two killed, 13 injured.

Night-raiding Luftwaffe bombers subjected a city in northwest England to its heaviest sustained assault in months, driving at least 150 persons from their homes and burying others, killed and wounded, in the wreckage.

Six persons were killed in another raid in the English midlands.

Greeks Take Prisoners

On the Albanian war front, the Greek high command reported the capture of 450 Italian prisoners as Greek troops counter-attacked after stemming an Italian assault "of great violence."

"The mountains are covered with hundreds of dead and wounded," an Athens spokesman said. Yugoslav dispatches said the Greeks had gained in attacks in the Tepeleni and Lake Ochrid regions.

Premier Mussolini's high command said the Greeks attacked in the Viosa Valley sector, around Tepeleni, "and were repulsed with heavy losses."

The Fascist high command also reported that Italian troops in Eritrea, East Africa, had captured a British position in the bitterly-disputed Cheren sector, "putting the garrison to flight."

British headquarters in Cairo said Fascist losses in Italian Somalia totaled more than 31,000 since British troops crossed the Juba about two weeks ago.

British imperial forces occupied the town of Daga Bur, in Ethiopia, the daily Cairo war bulletin declared, and "in other sectors our troops are continuing pursuit of Italian forces retreating toward the Ethiopian frontier."

"No change in the situation" was reported on the Libyan desert front, where little activity has occurred since the British captured Bengasi February 6.

Reports reaching New York said Generalissimo Franco of Spain had rejected flatly "inconsistent with Spanish honor" a German demand that Spain give territorial facilities for the flight of Nazi planes to Italy's hard-pressed forces in Africa.

The British naval command announced a British submarine had torpedoed and sunk a heavily-laden Italian troop ship of 9,646 tons in the Mediterranean area. The exact location wasn't given.

WOODSTOCK—Woodstock, March 12—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradley returned to Woodstock Monday after having spent a number of weeks in Florida.

The stewards meeting of the Methodist Church, which was to have been held at the parsonage Tuesday evening, was postponed because of bad weather and will be held at the same time Thursday evening.

Mrs. David Meyer is ill at present.

Arthur Peper suffered injury a few days ago when a portion of a snow removal truck he was driving broke loose from the machine and struck him in the face. After medical attention, the injury is now much better.

GIRL SCOUT BIRTHDAY
 Today is the 29th birthday of Girl Scouting in this country. This birthday observance is important to all American citizens, because it is a timely reminder that national defense begins with the nation's youth.
 The good work done in the past year by the Girl Scouts of Kingston and Ulster county shows what can be done to train girls for motherhood and citizenship. A nation which has a large body of its young girls and boys trained to think for themselves and to accept the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship is a nation which can't be easily overthrown by our enemies from within or from our shores without.

Dictators recognize the value of youth organizations. They take them over or abolish them if they can't bend them to their wills. It would seem the part of national wisdom to support such organizations and strengthen them.

America needs such organizations as the Girl Scouts. We should not only wish them a happy birthday but give them genuine support. Parents know that future citizens and mothers of citizens need the sort of practical democratic experience offered by the Girl Scout troops of the city and county.

Many national defense plans are for young people more than eighteen years old. When girls from seven to eighteen ask: "What can we do to help?" the answer should be to join the Girl Scouts. They will show you plenty to do and you'll have fun doing it."

TRYING TO PLAY SAFE
 A noted foreign correspondent said recently that he had heard more defeatist talk about Great Britain in the first five days after his return to the United States than he had heard in as many months in Europe.

Why is it, then, that so many little governments, wanting Great Britain to win and believing that it will win in the long run, succumb to Hitler's blitz-diplomacy and allow themselves to be overrun by the German military machine and the Gestapo?

In the first place, they are thoroughly afraid of Nazi terrorism. Germany is nearer to them than Britain. If they resist, they may reason, Hitler will bomb their cities and kill many of their people. If they surrender, their situation will be no worse and they will have saved themselves from the dreaded physical destruction.

Eventually, when Great Britain wins, they believe they will regain their freedom. If they set up shadow governments in London to cooperate with the British, and let Hitler set up what they hope will be only temporary governments in their capitals, they may figure that they will come out better in the long run.

The trouble with such reasoning is that every bloodless victory makes Hitler that much stronger, increases his power over other little nations, gives him fresh supplies to replenish his waning stocks, and makes victory just so much arder for Britain.

HONDURAN FRIENDS
 "Honduras will work hand in hand with the United States to the limit of its abilities and its peculiar geographical advantages, in any necessary program for the military, naval and aerial defense of North and Central America and of the Panama Canal." So said President Tiburcio Carias Andino to an American interviewer.

Most people in the United States know little about Honduras or whether its proffered cooperation means much. Some of the assets its president names are rapid transport for civil and military purposes across the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from north to south. Two air lines maintain daily service, with adequate airports throughout the country. There is also a network of excellent roads.

Honduras has a military school of aviation, a well trained army and national guard, a shipyard, and so on.

The main thing, however, is the spirit. President Andino said, "Honduras hopes that war will not come to the Americas. However, if the challenge is unavoidable, Honduras, its administration, its army and its people will stand shoulder to shoulder with its great northern neighbor, and Honduras' cooperation will not be ineffective."

The more all the American neighbors come to feel like that about each other, the less will be the danger to them from any part of the world.

STRIKES AND PRODUCTION
 Some of our people may not be taking armament seriously enough. Although strikes are said not to have affected more than 1-400th of the total defense program at one time, the total loss of working time in January and February is estimated at 591,000 man-days. And the severity of the loss kept increasing from week to week. In January there were only 34 strikes with 148,000 man-days of labor lost, but in February there were 63 strikes and 443,000 man-days lost.

It was testified at a congressional hearing that in the last week of February 130,000 man-days were lost in plants producing army equipment. A "partial" list of vital defense items involved mentions airplanes, tractors, turbines, generators, machine tools, trailers, guns, bombs, gun carriages, wheels, wheel drums, range tanks, yokes for trench mortars, nitric acid, ferro-alloys, aluminum, clothing, batteries, airplane parts, airplane cloth and steel.

In various cases a small number of striking workmen have tied up large factories. The closing of those factories handicaps others.

There is an almost universal disposition today to give American labor a "square deal," with a rather liberal interpretation of that principle. But labor may lose more than it gains if it appears to be taking undue advantage in a time of national urgency. It is far better, while asking for better pay and working conditions, to remain on the job.

The hoarding has begun, some men are hoarding tobacco, and a certain kid is said to be hoarding chewing gum.

"Carol and Magda May Fly to America." Well, Uncle Sam would give 'em a run for their money.

Turkey needn't hesitate so; anybody can get into this war.

Stars have been falling on Russia, too, but nobody sings about it there.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
"TOO OLD TO UNDERGO OPERATION"

Within a very short space of time I had three elderly patients undergo operation, two for gall stones and one for an enlarged prostate-gland situated at neck of bladder. All three made good recoveries despite the fact that their ages were 72, 74, and 79 respectively.

Dr. A. W. S. Hay, Winnipeg, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, states that the expression "too old for operation" is heard too often; that age is not a question of years but of the physical and mental condition of the patient. "No one can say of a man of seventy-five that he is too old for operation unless one has studied that patient not only from the standpoint of the disease to be removed but also from the general standpoint. And without making such a study, one is not justified in condemning the old gentleman to continued misery by refusing surgical aid solely because of the added risk due to his age. A death rate of 10 to 30 per cent is very much less to be dreaded than months or possibly years of misery."

Of course, most elderly individuals should not undergo operation to remedy slight defects or discomforts which are not important from the standpoint of health, but there are conditions which cause misery and suffering which can be corrected with a great degree of safety under the favorable hospital conditions of today.

What operations may justly be advised for elderly people? Dr. Hay states that operations that may be justly advised fall into the following groups:

1. Emergencies (to save life from immediate danger).
2. Operations where the patient can make his own choice between trying to withstand pain, such as gallstone colic, by use of quieting drugs, or by operation.
3. To overcome some severe physical disability such as a large hernia (rupture).
4. Malignant disease—cancer.

One fact that has been brought out by investigations into the results of operations on elderly patients is that in "emergency" operation, the death rate is no greatly higher than it might have been in younger patients having the same conditions present.

Another important point is that the search for other conditions present that might interfere with the results of operation should be most carefully sought before operation in elderly patients.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Since I started writing this series of sketches of life in Kingston at the turn of the century several have asked me who were the men who composed the first board of public works in the city, and how the board came into existence.

That is a comparatively easy question to answer as I recall that in 1915 during the administration of Palmer Canfield, Jr., as mayor of the city, he believed that care of the streets and parks should be lodged in the hands of a board that would be able to plan ahead. As a result of the mayor's reasoning he submitted revisions to the city charter, and among one of the provisions was that creating a board of public works to consist of four members and the mayor, the board to be appointed by the mayor.

The principal idea back of the creating of the board was that it would be able each year to lay out a comprehensive street building program and plan to build or reconstruct a certain number of streets each summer until the entire city street system had been reconstructed.

The board was appointed early in 1916 by Mayor Canfield and the members, including the mayor, who presided as president, were Addison E. Dederick, Ward B. Everett, David Burgevin and John R. Tammany.

Mr. Dederick was a widely known building contractor; Mr. Everett was in the insurance business; Mr. Burgevin was the well known florist, while Mr. Tammany was engaged in the retail coal business downtown.

The year 1916 marked the first year in the board's history and it has been functioning ever since although the personnel has been constantly changing.

Mayor Canfield was the father

"The King for a Week"

Celebration at Sears

John J. Conahan, assistant manager of the local Sears-Robuck store, will become a "reigning monarch" Thursday, March 13, when R. C. Clements, local manager, hands over the reins to Sears' store and "takes a back seat as far as being in the big boss is concerned."

This ascension to a throne signifies the participation of the Kingston store in the national nine-day selling event known as the "King for a Week" celebration.

Inaugurated three years ago by the Sears organization, the "King for a Week" promotion is the occasion when the assistant managers "rule the roost"—having complete charge of the company's stores and using the medium of "King for a Week" as a nationwide sales promotion.

"The King for a Week" celebration is distinctly an all-employee affair," stated Mr. Conahan, in charge of the Kingston store for the week beginning March 13. "For the past six months our department managers have been making purchases in anticipation of this event—and now we're ready to offer the public some outstanding values in merchandise they need and want."

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

Kabloonka
 By Gontran de Poncins

It is pretty difficult to understand how a gently reared and obviously sophisticated man such as Gontran de Poncins could in the first place set out to "find himself" in the manner of Don Quixote, and secondly, choose the desert wastes of the Arctic for his search.

But de Poncins, who likes to be called "Mike," did just that. From childhood he had resented the selfishness and greed of man. He forced himself to learn a business, and it is to be presumed that he earned enough in the business to finance his later wanderings: to the South Seas, to India, Arabia, China. He did not find what he wanted in those places, and he went North.

He brought back a book that is not only good reading, but important reading. It is the record of the conflict of the prehistoric mind with the mind of a modern Frenchman. More accurately, it is the record of de Poncins' surrender to the Eskimo mind and mentality. He found he could only live among the Eskimos of King William Land and the contiguous territories by accepting them, their food, their tabus, their clothing, their thought (such as the latter was). In doing this he drained away much of the bile the outside world had stored in his soul.

Then, because no man can escape the world, he returned to civilization, and after whipping his book into shape he returned to France to fight. No one, his publisher says, knows where Mike de Poncins is today.

"Kabloonka" is full of astounding fact, and of really fine portraits, not all of them portraits of people worth painting in such fine prose, to be sure. But there is Father Henry, the missionary, who lives in a cave where the temperature is 55 below; there is the old hunter who strangled himself because of an insult. There is the intimate detail of Eskimo life, which includes wife trading, much patient fishing, occasional starvation and other detail too numerous to mention. Also there is a curious attractive picture of a featureless land where there are no landmarks, a territory which automatically reduces the pride of man simply by being as it is.

This last seems to have been what de Poncins wanted. "Kabloonka" is the March Book of the Month.

Today in Washington

Nearly Two-Thirds of Republicans Cast Favorable Vote for Lease-Lend Measure in House Roll Call

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 12—America's major political parties have given an unexampled demonstration of their willingness to put country above partisanship. Nearly two-thirds of the Republicans recorded themselves as in favor of the lend and lease bill on the final roll call in the House of Representatives in contrast to the almost solid vote which was cast against it by the minority party when the measure first came up a few weeks ago.

It is true the bill has been materially changed and safeguarded by the Senate since the first vote was taken in the House, but it is also true that the main purpose and objectives of the measure have not been altered in the slightest. What has happened is a manifestation by public opinion of its desire to have the legislation passed as a means of defending the nation against possible encroachment by a victorious Nazi government. This unquestionably impressed members of the Republican party who disliked to be placed in the position of voting partisanship at a time of national crisis.

When the bill passed the House, the Republicans had had little chance to hear from the country. No such extended period for debate was offered as in the Senate and members originally followed party lines in supporting the bill in its unamended form. During the Senate debate, however, public opinion indicated its anxiety about certain provisions of the bill and amendments were offered which took away much of the grounds for opposition. But at the same time, the changed nature of the bill gave the Republicans a basis for their arguments that the bill had been improved and that they now could afford to vote for it.

The victory of popular opinion over partisanship is one of the most remarkable in all legislative history, and it is a tribute to the leadership of Wendell Willkie that the party whose banner he carried in the last presidential campaign came through and backed him in his bold stand behind the measure. Mr. Willkie incurred the lasting antagonism of no doubt of a small number of isolationists in his party, but the record vote in the House is sufficient vindication for what he did.

The future of Mr. Willkie in the political arena may be uncertain, but there can be no doubt that he saw sooner than did the other leaders of his party the direction in which public opinion was moving. To the credit of the Republicans in the House it must be said that they eventually saw the changing trends and did not hesitate to answer the plea that Mr. Willkie made for a demonstration of unity.

Even the Republicans whose convictions did not permit them to vote for the bill on final passage in the House made it clear that they now would support the carrying out of the policy laid down in the measure. This means that appropriate action necessary to attain the object of the lend and lease law will not have much more than a perfunctory opposition.

There is no underestimating the significance of the overwhelming vote given in both houses to this extraordinary piece of legislation. It means, so far as the rest of the world is concerned, that the policies of President Roosevelt in international affairs have just been given a substantial vote of confidence and that America stands united in the critical battle which democracies are waging for self-preservation.

 No vote unless it were an outright declaration of war could mean more to the morale of the British and other nations fighting alongside her in the present war. In some quarters abroad the vote will actually be regarded as the nearest possible equivalent to a vote for war. But Americans know that the United States is not voting for war. But merely to give the President full power to defend America should any foreign power undertake to commit an act of war against American interests.

There will be plenty of loose talk here and there about America's going to war now, but even since the lend and lease bill has become law it cannot be said that the administration is wavering one iota from its basic effort which is to steer the ship of state through troubled waters without firing a shot.

Aid of a material and military and naval character will be forthcoming. America will finance the war preparations and lend them to Britain because the latter can thereby help keep the war further from our shores. Beyond that there is no real desire on the part of our government to become entangled in the war effort in a physical sense though there are, to be sure, many persons inside and outside the government who are freely predicting that America can't keep out. It is important to record that the policies being developed, however, look toward keeping out if it is humanly possible to do so.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—I'd like to make a recommendation to the historians of a couple of thousand years from now. When they are looking for "Americana," let them dig up a few copies of the Congressional Record and tap the richest well of our times.

There's nothing in the world quite like the Congressional Record. It's printed by the Government Printing Office, and if you subscribe to it ($150 a month) in Washington, you'll get it every morning. Today it may be 400 pages; tomorrow only 50; maybe day after, it won't be published at all. (That's when Congress doesn't meet.)

The Government Printing Office (GPO), as it is called in Washington, is probably the greatest publishing house in the world, but that's another story. Right now we are talking about the Congressional Record.

Minutes of the Meetings
 Its main body contains a verbatim report of everything that happens in the Senate and House of Representatives. The word "verbatim" should be used with some reservation, because any congressman has the privilege of asking his house that what he has just said be stricken from the Record. When such a request is made, it almost always is granted, for congressmen are among the first to recognize that, in the heat of debate, they can err in common.

Not only that, but even if a Congressional Record is printed, members may ask for corrections to be made in their dissertations, and this also is almost always granted unanimously, because what man doesn't reread his statements and found in them things he wished he had said differently—or not at all?

Still the Congressional Record is corrected very few times and the pleas for withdrawal of statements don't crop up once in ten or twenty thousand words.

The 'Appendix'
 In spite of all the laws that are passed, all the debates over what is good or bad for our way of life, I don't think tomorrow's Nutritive values of meats are demonstrated, as well as the necessary varieties of other foods that are necessary to a healthful, balanced diet. Meat cookery, especially the preparation of leftovers, is graphically illustrated.

Kerhonkson Union School Activities

Reading Improved

Kerhonkson, March 11—For three years, the Kerhonkson High School has been conducting a class in remedial reading. Approximately one-third of the pupils who enter high school are deficient in reading ability according to tests conducted over a period of five years. It is obvious that if a pupil cannot read sufficiently well, his scholarship will suffer.

The procedure at Kerhonkson is first of all to find out just what is wrong. This is done by means of a diagnostic test. A pupil may be able to read fast but still be unable to comprehend what he reads. He may be unable to read scientific material or to understand poetry. As soon as his defect or defects are found out, the teacher gives him special exercises which tend to overcome these faults.

The class conducted from February through June, 1940, showed a decided improvement in reading ability.

At the present time, Mrs. Harold Darling is drawing up a more complete program for the coming year. Her work includes a survey of what has been accomplished so far and recommendations for the future.

Science Program

Visitors to Anthony Wilk's science department are apt to be much surprised with the type of equipment on hand. Some of these include a photo-electric cell, slides, an electric static machine for making man-made lightning, glass lift pumps and force pumps and a steam generator. There is also a micro-projector, a machine which is used to magnify and project on a screen minute objects such as a cross section of a leaf, bacteria, and other specimens.

The school is especially proud of the fine collections of insects and butterflies donated by Mrs. H. F. Small.

Science courses at Kerhonkson include seventh and eighth grade science, general science, general biology, physics and chemistry.

Typewriting Service

Miss Muriel Barry, head of the commercial department, has announced a free service to businessmen of the community. The advanced typing class will type menus, inventory sheets, price tags, letters, programs, tickets and other items for those businessmen who request the service.

There is no charge except for materials in mimeographing.

In addition to furnishing a real service to the community, such a plan will give boys and girls an opportunity to do work which will be actually used. It is expected that this experience will help them in their future vocations.

The project has been approved by the Board of Education.

As project work, all of the typing classes are planning to do some artistic typing including the faces of well-known people.

Attendance

Schools are required by statute to remain open 190 days during the year. It is estimated that pupils need this time in order to secure sufficient instruction in their school work. Therefore, it is highly important to every pupil that he be in attendance as much as possible. Furthermore, state aid to the district is based upon the average daily attendance of pupils. When a large number are out because of illness, the district loses money.

Parents of pupils attending Kerhonkson Union School recognize these facts and are cooperative. Seldom do school officials find that children are unnecessarily kept at home. Attendance charts for both the elementary and high school show a favorable record.

High School Instruction

Poor Stands in Field

Traced to Weak Seeds

Geneva, N. Y., March 12—Well-conducted germination tests properly interpreted will detect seed stocks lacking in vigor and may go a long way toward preventing losses due to poor stands in the field, declare the specialists in the seed testing laboratory of the State Experiment Station here. Poor stands of crops in the field may be due to several factors, but frequently when the trouble is run down, it is found that the real cause was the use of seed of weak vitality.

A seed stock may have a low percentage of germination yet the seeds which do germinate may produce normal seedlings and the field stand will be thin but vigorous, while another seed stock may have a fairly high total germination, but the seeds may be so lacking in vigor that when planted in the field they do not have sufficient strength to push the young plants up through the soil, it is said. Such lots of seed are the ones which cause heavy losses and no form of seed treatment will restore strength of life to such low vitality stocks.

Seeds Lose Their Vigor

Seeds may lose their vitality through injury at time of harvest, by heating in stacks, bins, or bags, by improper storage, or by freezing when they hold too much moisture. Also, as they grow older seeds decrease in vitality year by year. This may not be noticeable at first, but sooner or later the seeds lose their usefulness, although different kinds of seeds vary greatly in longevity or span of life.

That seedmen and farmers, too, are aware of the importance of vigorous germination in their seed stocks is evidenced by the large number of samples sent in for test in the station's seed testing laboratory. Where the seed is of a farmer's own growing and where the information regarding germination is to be used by the farmer himself as a guide in his own planting, no charge is made for the test. Where the seed is to be offered for sale, a nominal fee is charged for this service.

Chapter 31
Come Christmas

"THIS is, I suppose, what you demanded of Hugh?" Roger demanded of Hugh. "To make a fool of me? To make a silly scene?" Hugh was too startled to reply immediately. Roger turned to Lovely with: "And you! What kind of a woman are you anyway? You ask about everything under the sun but your own daughter! He was on his feet. "Come on Emily, we're going!"

They were on their way before Lovely found the broken choked voice to say, "I didn't dare ask about her! I didn't dare! I felt as if just speaking her name would kill me. I've wanted to see her so!"

Hugh said, after they'd sipped their drinks for a space in silence: "I'm sorry, Lovely. I guess nobody can fix anyone else's life. You've got to do some things for yourself."

Lovely looked at him intently as if a new thought was taking shape in her mind.

"How much do you think he hates me, Hugh?" Lovely asked as they said an early good night. "Only as much as he loves you," was Hugh's sincere answer.

In the living room of the big Cosgrave house that Saturday afternoon Emily found Roger blankly looking into the fire, a hibiscus on the small table beside him.

"Have one?" he offered, rising as she entered. But Emily refused the drink.

"I've come to tell you Roger. About two weeks ago Aunt Amalia made me a proposition to travel with her this winter in Mexico. I turned it down because I wanted to stay here. Well, I've told Amalia I'd go with her. I did it this morning. We sail Monday."

"You'll have a great time Emily."

Emily turned quickly and walked out of the room. Roger had again that definite sense of amputation. Something was being cut out of his life and there was relief at the knowledge.

Marcia came in while Roger was still sitting there thinking. He mixed her a drink while he told her. Marcia said, looking thoughtfully at the glass in her hand: "I'm glad Emily's going. It'll be good for her. She's never stopped possessing you in her own mind."

Animal Cookies

IN New York, next morning Lovely opened her eyes to the day before Christmas and felt as if the walls of her room were closing in on her with loneliness. An early knock on her door brought her face to face with Joe, standing big and awkward in his trucker's uniform.

"Joe!" Notes of gladness in her voice.

"Look honey," he said, "this is for you from me. He gave her a bunch of mistletoe tied with red ribbon, and Lovely took it, misty eyed, and held it against her cheek.

"And Ma made these," Joe continued. Lovely opened the box he had thrust into her hands and then turned to him in surprise.

"But animal cookies, Joe! They're for kids."

Don't Quit

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will, When the road you're treading seems all up hill, When the funds are low and the debts are high, And you want to smile, but you have to sigh, When care is pressing you down a bit, Rest, if you must—but don't you quit. Life is queer with its twists and turns, As everyone of us sometimes learns, And many a failure turns about When he might have won had he stuck it out; Don't give up, though the pace seems slow— You might succeed with another blow. Often the goal is nearer than it seems to a faint and faltering man, Often the struggler has given up When he might have captured the victor's cup, And he's learned too late, when the night slipped down, How close he was to the golden crown. Success is failure turned inside out The silver tint of the clouds of doubt— And you never can tell how close you are, It may be near when it seems afar; So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit— It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit. —Author unknown

Cowboy Songs

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP)—Modern music owes much to the sure-footed Texas cowboy whose hoofbeats rhythmically stirred up dust on the prairies, a Texas Christian University professor says. "Rhythms of many songs have been devised—probably quite unconsciously—to fit the gaits of the horse," Dr. Newton Gaines explains. "A trot will fit the jerky time of 'Chisholm Trail.' Then, 'A Walkin' the Streets of Laredo' is sung to the easy swing of the lope. Slow, mournful songs of the night herd, such as 'Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie' and 'Barbara Allen,' are adapted to the walk of the horse." "If the cowboy didn't sing to the movement of his horse he'd get the breath knocked out of him," Gaines adds.

Boys of Belgium cut holes in the top of their berets, then place a carrot through the hole to resemble the spiked helmets of the German staff, and whenever an officer is spotted they spring to attention, then solemnly goose-step backwards.

Chapter One

"TWO HEARTS."

Julie Holt Emerson glanced down at her cards and sighed impatiently. In the last hour of bridge she had already learned that her partner, Mrs. Selby-Williams, would bid just for the fun of it—and yet he had when Julie failed to support her.

She regarded Mrs. Selby-Williams' hands across the table, still sorting the cards, and sighed again with distaste. Why did diamonds always look vulgar on pudgy hands? She was glad her own hands—once called "the most expressive on the American stage"—had retained their slenderness.

She glanced toward Mrs. Marbury, on her right. Mrs. Marbury, too, was plump, but her softness was the appealing kind. Julie thought. Even though it was an effort to smile when Mrs. Marbury said again, as usual:

"I think hearts is such a nice suit—sort of romantic. I just won't bid spades, although I probably could. But they're such ugly things..."

"Talking across the table!"

The woman at Julie's left, thin and mousey-looking—"unimportant," Julie had immediately labeled her—was plainly irritated by this type of bridge. But she had arrived only that afternoon at the Ocean Park Hotel and would, Julie thought, leave the next day. She had already complained bitterly of the "cobble-stone beach," the impossible food and terrible service. By morning she would have enough complaints to justify breaking her reservation.

Privately, Julie Emerson agreed with everything she said. But she had chosen this hotel for the intangible benefits it could bring to herself and her protégé, Evangeline Prentice.

What did poor service matter, if you were served in the same room as Mrs. Theodore Marbury and her niece? Who cared about the beach, if, on the bridge path, Eve might bump into an eligible young man? She had been in far more uncomfortable hotels, Julie thought sturdily, although not, she remembered with a shudder, at thirty dollars a day!

Oh, Mrs. Marbury—did you see that little gold heart Eve has on her charm bracelet? Julie felt the thin woman at her left squirm impatiently and permitted her glance to rest on her just a moment. The woman wilted, and Julie went on, hinting rather broadly that the golden heart was the gift of a rejected suitor. She could do this thing to perfection, Julie was saying to herself with inward satisfaction. Not for nothing had she played down-agers on every stage in America. But she knew when to call a halt and give the game a chance. With infinite tact, she led her partner away from hearts and into diamonds. Her bid gave the dour woman a chance to set her five hundred points and Julie took Mrs. Selby-Williams' heavy sarcasm with a good grace.

During the next hand, however, she managed to lead Mrs. Marbury on to talking about her niece. As she had hoped, the thin woman got up suddenly, and, with a hastily murmured excuse, fled from the room. Julie laid down her cards with pleasure.

"I know you dislike three-handed bridge, and there doesn't seem to be anyone who isn't already playing," she said with satisfaction, as she glanced around the room. More bridge did not suit her purpose at the moment; she wanted to talk to Mrs. Marbury. "I believe you told us you wanted to get back to your room early," Julie added to Mrs. Selby-Williams.

That lady looked at her diamond-studded wrist watch with an exclamation of surprise.

"Why, it's much later than I thought. My husband said he wanted to have dinner early to-night, and perhaps I have time for just a short nap—" Her voice trailed away as she hoisted her plump body from the low bridge chair and ambled slowly out of the room.

First Success

JULIE regarded her going with scornful eyes. Her own stage training had had its difficult moments, but at least, she thought with sudden gratitude, she had learned how to enter and leave a room without waddling.

"We haven't seen much of your Eve," Mrs. Marbury looked at Julie with an expression that was suddenly shrewd.

"Well, these young things, you know—" Julie's expressive hands excused youth's shortcomings. "I'm afraid Eve is just a little up set right now. Not a serious love affair, of course, but if I hadn't dragged her away when I did—" Mrs. Marbury's romantic nature was touched, as Julie had foreseen. Nevertheless Julie glanced hastily over her shoulder to make sure that Eve had not come in unexpectedly and overheard any part of it.

Eve was being difficult, it was true, but Julie's explanation was born of impulse and Eve would probably have denied it at once if she had heard it. There was no sign of Julie's tall, dark-haired protégé, however, and Mrs. Marbury accepted the suggestion of a broken romance with alacrity.

"Never mind, my dear, she'll thank you for this later on. Gina too—that's my niece, you know—has had her little flirtations, but I always think that if you can keep young folks amused and interested they keep out of mischief so much better. That's really why I'm trying to persuade Mr. Marbury to let me buy an old country place on an island, if we can get one like that. I would prefer to have it quite rundown, you know, and let Gina help me redecorate it. I think it would bring out her homemaking instinct. But of course—" she laughed, with an intimacy that delighted Julie—"I wouldn't let her know that for the world. All she thinks of now is parties and tennis and horseback riding—you know how it is."

"But how perfectly clever of you!" Julie broke in admiringly. "I wish I'd thought of doing that for Eve. You know she really has a talent for interior decoration. But of course—" Julie shook her head—"my income is not what it was."

Mrs. Marbury, once on the subject, bubbled on about this search of hers for just the right type of house. She recounted her disappointments in looking at places said to have been built long ago, adding, "Of course, I'm no authority on the subject, but even I could see they'd been built as late as 1830."

"But how old do you want this house to be?" Julie inquired, a little puzzled.

She wouldn't consider anything later than Revolutionary times, Mrs. Marbury explained. It was a period of American architecture that was particularly appealing, she thought. Besides, she went on, "these really old places should be preserved as a record of our nation."

Anyhow, now she had engaged a young man who knew everything about Early American architecture, and he was conducting the search for her. His name was Brett Rodman and she had heard only the day before that he'd found what he believed to be just the house.

Julie tried to keep her attention from wandering. Old houses! For her part, she liked a good hotel. Yet Mrs. Marbury and her niece seemed to be the social center of the summer colony at Ocean Park and Julie had grimly determined that they should serve to introduce herself and Eve to everyone worth while.

So far, Mrs. Marbury had done nothing to further this ambition beyond an occasional afternoon of bridge in which Eve refused to join them. Really, Julie thought, not for the first time, Eve was being too difficult.

"I have some good news for you, dear," Julie said.

"—and we're going to have Mr. Rodman come over tomorrow afternoon to tell us about it," Mrs. Marbury was saying. "Since you're so interested in old houses, why don't you and your niece drop in to our suite about five o'clock? Gina will probably have the place packed with her crowd and we won't be able to hear anything, but you and I can talk to Mr. Rodman in some corner."

For a moment Julie was almost caught off-guard. The invitation she had been angling for!

Telling Eve

"WHY we'd love to!" she said, eagerly, too eagerly. "That is," she added with more of her old caution, "if I can persuade Eve to stop moping for a few hours. It's very kind of you to ask us," she went on, with just the right note conveying a tacit understanding between them. "I'm sure if Eve could meet some new young people she would get over this—this infatuation much sooner. Yet one has to be so careful in an hotel—"

Again Julie's hands expressed her thought for her. Mrs. Marbury immediately caught the intonation. Julie wanted to get up and run from the table, so that she might tell Eve at once how successfully her plans were working out. But she forced herself to sit quietly while Mrs. Marbury went on describing the hazards of having too much money. She felt her smile getting stiff as she agreed for the hundredth time that one couldn't be too careful nowadays. At last the other bridge players began to drift away, and Mrs. Marbury recalled that she had promised to have dinner with some friends. Julie went to the elevator with a sigh of relief.

When Julie reached the room she and Evangeline Prentice had taken for the month she found it deserted.

She settled down before the dressing table of imitation mahogany and picked up a rubber, spoon-shaped instrument with which she proceeded to spank vigorously the slightly fleshy line under her chin.

The sound of the door opening cut across her wandering thoughts. "Is that you, dear?" she asked, turning her face toward the sound. Pads steeped in ice water covered her eyes. Her appearance would have startled anyone less accustomed to the sight than the tall dusky-haired girl who was crossing the room with a swinging grace. Eve, as a matter of fact, barely glanced at the apparition that Julie presented, and the grotesque effect of the eye-pads was completely lost on her.

"Of course," she answered. Julie heard the creak of the springs as Eve threw herself across one of the twin beds.

Since Julie Holt Emerson had appeared in Eve's life after her mother's death, the actress had been a good friend, Eve had to admit.

But Julie could be difficult at times, too. This idea of hers about marrying well, for instance, was one of the most trying for Eve to endure. Didn't Julie know that love could not be beckoned at will? The few thousand dollars they had won with that funny little soap contest jingle were melting rapidly in this expensive and uninteresting hotel. If only Julie had let her do what she wanted—open her own decorating shop and at least try to make some provision for the future.

Julie removed her eye-pads and sat back for a moment contemplating the girl's long figure, graceful even as it sprawled on the white counterpane. "I have some good news for you, dear," she said.

State Job Agency Has Office for Resorts of State

New York, March 12—The increasing tendency of the tired business man to do his vacationing in winter and to do it in New York State has created a new field of employment for New York staters and a new field of activity for the New York State Employment Service, according to Milton O. Laysen, executive director of the State Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance. Mr. Laysen today announced the establishment in New York City of a special office of the N. Y. S. E. S., exclusively for the year-round placement of employees in summer and winter resorts. This Resort

Office, located at 87 Madison avenue, offers a complete personal service for resort management, supplying kitchen and dining room workers, chambermaids, bartenders, athletic and social directors, office employees, managerial staff and even musicians and entertainers, with facilities for audition. Although this year-round service is a new venture, the N. Y. S. E. S. has had a similar unit for several years solely for summer resort managers who do their hiring in New York city. Last year, during the six-month period, of March 1 to Labor Day, this unit placed 2,080 summer resort employees, as compared with 1,250 during the comparable six-month period of 1939. In addition, many summer resort placements were made by the N. Y. S. E. S. through its 58 offices that provide local service for employers outside of New York city.

There were 35,880 major crimes in New York state in 1940 compared with 38,768 the year before.

Zates Held Under $500 Bail Pending Grand Jury Action

Fred Zates, 40, of 216 Wilbur avenue, waived examination this morning in police court and was held to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of malicious mischief, an indictable offense. Bail was fixed at $500 by Judge Matthew V. Cahill.

The charge against Zates was that of cutting and taking about 400 feet of wire of the Western Union circuit from the telegraph poles along the West Shore railroad right of way near the O'Reilly street bridge, disrupting the usual telegraph service for 12 hours.

The Western Union was unable to receive or send any messages through from Kingston to New York until the break in the system was discovered. Service was disrupted from 8 o'clock Monday night until 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Zates, according to the police, used a pair of car pliers and climbed up the telegraph poles and cut the wire for a distance of 400 feet. He then rolled the wire up and sold it to a local junk dealer, receiving $1.54 for the copper wire.

The theft of the wire was reported to the police department and Officer Wesley Cramer was assigned to the case. With him worked Sergeant E. W. Schoonmaker of the New York Central railroad police force.

Through the work of the officers Zates was suspected of being the man wanted and he was arrested at his home at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Local Bakers Have New Enriched White Bread

Kingston bakers are among the first to take an active part in our national defense nutrition program by making available to local housewives a new enriched white bread sponsored by the Food Committee of the National Research Council to help raise the nutritional levels of our American diet, thereby contributing to the well-being of the whole nation in these trying times.

This new enriched white bread contains all the vitamins and mineral factors required by the latest announcement of the Committee on Food and Nutrition of the National Research Council. As practically everyone knows the Committee on Food and Nutrition has listed thiamin, otherwise known as vitamin B1, nicotinic acid, called the pellagra-preventive vitamin, and iron as required ingredients of enriched bread. How these elements are to be incorporated into the bread is left to the individual baker, who may use a vitaminized flour, vitamin crystals or enriched hi-B1 yeast.

Local bakers have chosen the yeast method as the most logical and simplest way of raising the vitamin levels of their white bread. Housewives who are anxious to do all in their power to improve our national diet as well as to provide their own families with the most nourishing foods are expected to welcome this new enriched white bread which helps them put more of these B vitamins into their daily menus in a common delicious inexpensive food.

College Club Women Revive Annual Forum

The Kingston College Women's Club revived its annual forum Tuesday evening at the church home of the First Reformed Church. The forums have not been held for several years.

The group discussed the public school system and how it is meeting changing needs. Mrs. Felix Katz was chairman with Mrs. Herbert Fister, Miss Ethel M. Hull and Mrs. Paul Perlman taking part in the discussion. Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw and M. Joseph Block were invited guests to the discussion. The meeting was conducted by Miss Agnes Scott Smith who introduced the speakers.

Mrs. Fister was the first speaker. She spoke of the financing of the schools and gave two reasons for the increased cost of education. One was that the secondary education has been extended to the children of all people with new subjects added to the curriculum. The second was that the school term has been lengthened.

Mrs. Katz spoke of pre-school facilities to develop the child during his early years so he will be better oriented when he begins school. She spoke of the work of the nursery schools and the kindergarten and what had been accomplished.

Mrs. Perlman told of the facilities for helping both the subnormal and the abnormal child and gave statistics to corroborate her statements.

Miss Hull, the next speaker told the group of the changes that had been made in the high school curriculum throughout the state with a special emphasis on fitting the student for a life work.

The last speaker was Mr. Block, who gave the opportunities offered for post-professional training and the steps that are being taken to encourage teachers to take post graduate courses.

Mr. Laidlaw answered questions from the floor concerning these various aspects and their relation to the local school system.

A short business meeting preceded the forum at which the president appointed a nominating committee of Mrs. Wilson Norwood, Mrs. Joseph McNelis and Mrs. N. LeVan Haver.

Abavath Israel

Purim Schedule

The following is the Purim schedule for Abavath Israel:

Prim, or the Feast of Esther, will be celebrated tonight and tomorrow in commemoration of the deliverance of the Jewish people from the massacre plotted against them by their arch-enemy, Haman, in the time of Artaxerxes, about 2,400 years ago.

It is customary to read the Megillah or the Book of Esther, Purim evening and Purim morning in the synagogues.

For ages past, Jewish custom has greeted the advent of this feast with deeds of charity and good will. It is a time for sending portions to one another and gifts to the poor. There is no better way of honoring the feast of Purim than by conforming to this gracious usage.

Services will begin at 7:45 o'clock this evening. Rabbi Harold Marateck will deliver a Purim message after which the Megillah will be read. Special choral arrangements will be given by Rabbi Marateck and the choir.

Purim refreshments will be served after the services, followed by dancing and general social time. Services Thursday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

Answer: As I explain frequently—even as lately as last week—terms given to present-day creations are too ambiguous to enable me to answer definitely. However, if the red flannel dress does not suggest a red flannel lounging robe—I mean if it looks and fits like a tailored dress and not something to lie around in—then I see no reason why anyone should criticize you for wearing it.

Clothes for Hotel Dancing
Dear Mrs. Post: Are tails too formal to wear at a regular hotel dance?

Answer: It would depend upon the season, the location of the hotel, and the sort of people who patronize it. At an ultra-smart one in midwinter most if not all the men guests wear tails. But at the majority of hotels—even smart ones—they wear dinner clothes at all.

The first part of the program was devoted to a fashion show loaned by the College of Home Economics. The garments were made from standard patterns and materials easily duplicated in local stores.

Mrs. Ray LeFevre, county clothing and grooming leader, gave a brief commentary on each garment as it was modeled. Dresses for mature figures predominated, showing becoming color and design.

DuBois, Mrs. William Buddenhagen, Mrs. Primo Montafia, Mrs. John Cuff, Mrs. Tracy Munson, Mrs. Francis McLaughlin, Mrs. Charles Polizzi, Mrs. Charles Neilson, Miss Bertha Snyder, Mrs. Charles Neilson and Mrs. Elizabeth Clough.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Scouting Celebrates Birthday

Twenty-nine years ago this week Girl Scouting was launched in America by a woman very little known in her own country, a woman not young, not rich, and with one great handicap which to anyone less courageous would have been an insuperable obstacle—almost complete deafness.

Born Juliette Gordon in a fine old home in Savannah, Ga., she married an Englishman, William Low. Her New England grandmother had been captured by Indians and named "Little-Ship-Under-Full-Sail," a name which so aptly suited small "Daisy" that she fell heir to it.

As a child, Daisy survived the rigors of the Civil War and grew up to be a ringleader in the fun and frolic of 20 cousins. Even then she was always forming clubs, one of which, "The Helping Hands," became "The Helpless Hands" when she required her followers to thread needles with their left hands.

After her marriage to William Low, Daisy spent much of her time in England. It was in 1911 that Sir Robert Baden-Powell came to visit the Lows at a hunting lodge called Lochs, in Perthshire, Scotland. He told them of Boy Scouting in England, and of the just beginning sister movement called Girl Guiding, begun because English girls clamored to be allowed to share the fund of their Boy Scout brothers.

From that moment on, Juliette Low's life had one purpose—to bring the gift of this recreational movement to the girls of her native land. In January 1912, she set sail for the United States, and two months later, on March 12, the first group of Girl Scouts in this country met at her home in Savannah.

The laws and promise accepted by that first troop have stood the test of 29 years. Approximately two million girls, as they became Girl Scouts, have made the promise: "On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and to my country; to help other people at all times; and to obey the Girl Scout laws." And the laws, with their encouragement to loyalty, honesty, courage, and obedience, are unchanged.

Crude Manners Win Only Critical Little Smiles

How Not to Pay a Girl's Way

What boorish manners! Dickering for his share of the movie tickets right before the girls: "Forty-four, no, eighty-eight cents that's for my ticket and hers. Then let's see—"

And he's the man who wanted so much to meet a "really swell girl!" No "swell girl" will like a boy who doesn't even know that double-date accounts are settled when girls aren't present.

After all, how can a new girl judge you, except by your manners? If you discuss prices before her, forget to open doors for her or neglect to help her out of a car, she's naturally ashamed of you.

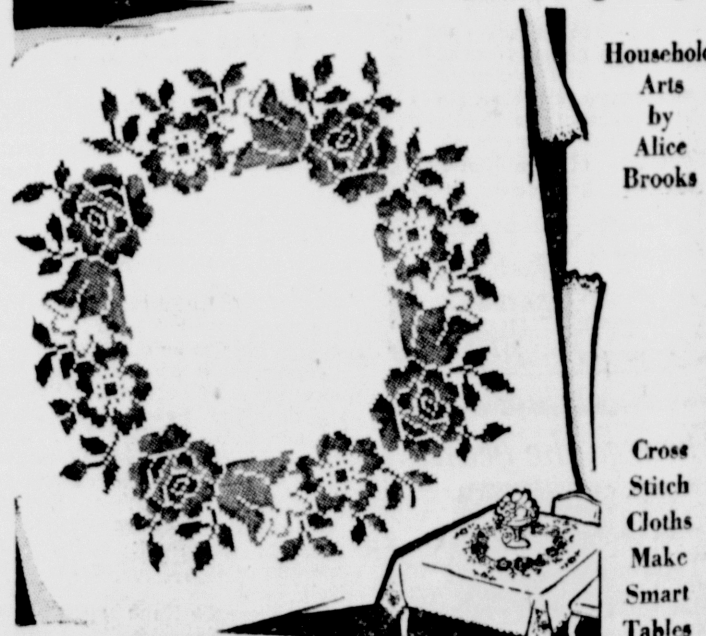

Men of the world—the kind girls usually fall for!—never make such errors. They rise when a woman enters the room. In introducing another man, they mention her name first.

And the type of girl these men prefer to take out? In a restaurant she doesn't have to wonder when she should thank the waiter. Nor at a dance is she flustered if a man cuts in.

She knows—and you could, too—the simple rules of etiquette that please. Our 32-page booklet gives behavior for men and girls at dances, movies, games; when dating, entertaining, visiting. Discusses petting problems.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG MODERNS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Battle for Britain and United States Action to Provide War Materials Seem to Have Taken Place at Same Time

British Believe Spring Offensive Has Begun; U. S. Faces Danger Through Axis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Hitler's great spring offensive against the British Isles, by sea and by air, and America's lend-lease bill which is calculated to help the Anglo-allies to evade disaster in this mighty effort and then go on to win the war, would seem to have got into action simultaneously.

There has been a sharp increase in German bombing and U-boat activity, and Britain believes the battle of the Atlantic is under way. Over at the other end of Europe the Balkans are hanging half over the precipice of war.

Coincident with all this there is a gathering of the Axis clan on the move. Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka is coming to Europe to confer with his German and Italian allies, and see for himself how the war goes.

That is likely to be a momentous conference. The attitude of the triple alliance toward the United States will be a big item for consideration. There is bound to come up the question of whether Japan shall enter the war on the side of the Axis in an effort to make a quick killing in the near future.

Indications are that Matsuoka will be governed by what he finds from examination on the ground. Since some of the Japanese press takes the attitude that Nippon is playing an opportunist game, there seems no reason why he should blink the question.

May Play His Game

On that basis it may be assumed that if the Japanese believe Hitler has the war in his pocket they will play his game. Otherwise they will avoid a clash with either America or Britain.

Taking it all in all, it looks as though the moment of Britain's supreme danger was approaching rapidly. The Axis is going to put everything it has into an effort to achieve a knockout.

It is a moment of danger for the United States as well. Quite apart from other considerations there is always the possibility that the Axis will decide to drag us into the war. It is wise to recognize that, so the shock won't be too great if it comes.

Appropos of the lend-lease bill, there came out of London yesterday the amazing statement that Britain has on hand enough trained personnel to man the entire American fleet if it were turned over to Britain. This claim was made by a high British naval source, who said England wanted all the ships she could get.

This would mean that Britain has sufficient reserves to man 322 naval ships of all classes. The figures for our personnel aren't available, but they were over 171,000 in 1940, with a large reserve.

The London statement sent my temperature up a bit, because only last week I stated in this column that my best information was that Britain could man a considerable number of warships immediately, but not another fifty destroyers such as we traded for naval bases. My figures came, if not from the horse's mouth, at least from the nose-bag.

Might Ask Somebody Else

I made the point in connection with Britain's desire for more vessels. My reason for inquiring about the reserve was because it was obvious that if Britain couldn't man more ships, she might in desperation ask somebody else to do it. And it struck me this might be our Uncle Sam—a matter of considerable concern to us Yankees.

So yesterday when the new figures arrived from London, I tossed them into the nose-bag. Back came the equivalent of "horse feathers" in a very Oxford accent. I was assured that somebody in London was dreaming.

I mention the matter here, not to raise a controversy between two British experts, for the matter can well be considered water over the dam, but as preface to the observation that the public is entitled to careful consideration by those whose business it is to make public announcements. Understatement or overstatement of facts creates confusion and makes it difficult for the man in the street to estimate situations in which he is being asked to play a big part.

To Broadcast

Through the courtesy of Station WTRY, Troy, 950 kilocycles, the following programs are released under the auspices of the Christian Science Committee on Publication for the State of New York: Religious program, each Thursday at 4 p. m. ### Rummage Sale

Plans are completed for the rummage sale of the Kingston Women's Christian Temperance Union, which is to open Friday, March 14, at the Post store on Broadway, opposite Franklin street. There will be a display of both warm and spring clothing. If members and friends having articles to contribute will telephone 2032 or 2436, they will be called for.

THAILAND BOUNDARY SETTLEMENT

Diagonally-shaded areas in this map indicate territory ceded to Thailand by French Indo-China following mediation of their frontier dispute by Japan. The Mekong river follows much of the new boundary; France retains much of the Luang-Prabang section (1) which Thailand had demanded originally. The Islands of Khong and Khone (2) will be under Thailand sovereignty but joint administration. Japan was reported to have arranged with Thailand for the large rice and timber yields in the newly ceded territory.

Exhibit of Film 'Stills' Are on Display in City

Walter Nase of Glenelg Lake Park, who was sent by Paramount to Charlottesville, Va., to make the photographic publicity stills for the technicolor picture "Virginia" starring Madeline Carroll and Fred Mac Murray, has an exhibit of some of the original stills at Marz Camera Shop on Fair street. The company consisting of more than 100 people, including actors, directors, cameramen, sound technicians, property men, electricians, and others, were nearly forced to abandon the Virginia location without making the picture.

The morning of the second day of shooting the 17-year locusts appeared in incredible numbers and started their shrill chirping in all the trees. Noise of the insects made it quite impossible to record the dialogue of the actors. After spending several days vainly trying to quiet the pests, the Charlottesville Fire Department did the job.
